

First Russia Internet Governance Forum: The agenda for the community

Andrew Romanov
Coordination Center for TLD .RU

Fifth Meeting of the Internet Governance Forum
Vilnius, Lithuania, September 14 –17, 2010

The agenda of the First Russia Internet Governance Forum

Bridging the Digital Divide and the Future of the Internet

Legal Issues of Internet Governance

The Global Internet Security

Balance between Transparency and Privacy Protection

Internationalized Domain Names

The agenda of the First Russia Internet Governance Forum (cont.)

Socio-Cultural Aspects of Internet Governance: Education, Science, Culture

Managing the Critical Infrastructure of the Internet

Internet Governance: New Challenges and Opportunities for Russia and the World

The outcome of the RIGF

The forum has pointed out:

1. That the Internet Governance Forum participants and the organizations and nations they represent should strive to create an environment that favors a multistakeholder model dealing with critical issues that are challenging the Internet development both in Russia and worldwide.
2. That bridging the digital divide and ensuring affordable access should form the priority for countries and regulators in the region in order to improve Internet usage as a major tool and enabler of socio-cultural and economic development.

The outcome of the RIGF (cont.)

3. That access and security have become key concerns for Russia and other nations and that they must be further debated at such international venues as IGF where different constituencies and stakeholders can share their experiences where peer countries can capitalize on each other's experiences and adapt those to their local environment.
4. That the Global IGF has been instrumental to creation of an open environment where major issues, including multistakeholderism, have been discussed and that the Global IGF has set a fundamentally new model of interaction and cooperation between major actors engaged in processes of Internet development. The regional fora enable efficient discussion between the Internet community, businessmen and government locally as well as the consolidation of respective proposals at IGF globally

Thank you!
Questions?

Координационный центр национального домена сети Интернет

Andrew Romanov
rom@cctld.ru
<http://www.cctld.ru>